Each center, institute, laboratory, and clinic is listed under the name of the unit with which it is associated.

Library Collections and Services

Library Collections and Services

The University of Pittsburgh libraries and collections provide an abundant amount of information and services to the University's students, faculty, staff, administrators, and researchers of the University. In fiscal year 2003, the University's 29 libraries and collections have surpassed 4.7 million volumes, more than 4.4 million pieces of microforms, more than 25,500 print subscriptions, and more than 9,000 electronic journals.

Under the administration of the Director, who serves as the University Librarian, the University Library System (ULS) includes the following libraries and collections: Hillman (main), African American, Buhl (social work), East Asian, Special Collections, Government Documents, Allegheny Observatory, Archives Service Center, Center for American Music, Chemistry, Computer Science, Darlington Memorial (American history), Engineering (Bevier Library), Frick Fine Arts, Information Sciences, Katz Graduate School of Business, Langley (biological sciences, behavioral neuroscience, psychology), Mathematics, Music, Physics, and Public and International Affairs/Economics. The ULS also maintains a high density storage area at the Library Resource Facility in the Point Breeze section of Pittsburgh. Libraries are located at each of the University's four regional campuses.

The Hillman Library is the largest library facility with seating for 1,530 users. It offers an open stack arrangement and an extensive range of library services. In addition to the main collection, which is comprised primarily of humanities and social sciences subject areas, the Hillman Library is comprised of five other libraries and collections, and houses maps, national and international newspapers, and microform facilities.

Outside of the University Library System are the Barco Law Library and the Health Sciences Library System.

The Health Sciences Library System (HSLS) provides collections and services to meet the information needs of the educational, clinical, and research programs of the Schools of Medicine, Dental Medicine, Pharmacy, Health and Rehabilitation Sciences, Nursing and the Graduate School of Public Health, as well as the hospitals of the UPMC Health System. The HSLS includes Falk Library of the Health Sciences, the Western Psychiatric Institute and Clinic Library and the Libraries at UPMC Shadyside. The Computer and Media Center in Falk Library is the primary health sciences facility and service point for audiovisual and microcomputer resources. HSL Online (www.hsls.pitt.edu) is the gateway to extensive electronic resources for clinical and research needs.

PITTCAT is the University of Pittsburgh's online library catalog, offering author, title, subject, and keyword access to materials to all University libraries. PITTCAT currently contains bibliographic holdings and circulation information for more than four million titles, representing most of the book and periodical collections in the University's libraries. In addition, the University libraries provide access to many remote resources for University of Pittsburgh faculty, students, and staff, including: Encyclopedia Britannica, netLibrary, EBSCOhost, InfoTrac, CIS Compass, Web of Science, MUSE, JSTOR, Science Direct, and numerous other electronic journals. PITTCAT and other databases are available through the ULS website at www.library.pitt.edu.

The University of Pittsburgh is a member of the Association of Research Libraries. Through membership in several Pennsylvania consortia of libraries (PALCI, PALINET, and the Oakland Library Consortium), cooperative borrowing arrangements have been developed with other Pennsylvania institutions.

Computing Services and Systems Development

Computing Services and Systems Development

Information technology has become an integral part of the academic and research mission of the University of Pittsburgh. Worldwide computing, networked information, online collaborations, and technology-delivered instruction are now daily experiences at the University's five campuses. Computing Services and Systems Development (CSSD) provides the infrastructure, resources, and support for these services, which are utilized by nearly every student, faculty, and staff member.

The University of Pittsburgh is showcased on the Internet at www.pitt.edu. CSSD maintains an information technology Web site at technology.pitt.edu.

Network and Telecommunications Environment

CSSD provides the network infrastructure and telecommunications backbone for the University community. The University's data network, PittNet, operates over a gigabit backbone that joins hundreds of local Ethernets into a large, geographically-distributed network and connects thousands of computers at all five University campuses to the Internet. High speed, reliable 100mbs Ethernet connections are the standard for University offices. The undergraduate residence halls are fully wired, with one Ethernet port per student. An extensive consulting and support program is available in the residence halls to support student computing. While off-campus, students, faculty, and staff have access to PittNet through a modem pool of nearly 800 modems. In addition, the Secure VPN Service (https://sslvpn.pitt.edu) provides students, faculty, and staff with a convenient way to access restricted online library journals, databases, and other University resources at any time and from any location.

CSSD also offers wireless network access for students in designated public areas on the Pittsburgh campus including Hillman Library, the Cathedral of Learning's Commons Room and lawn, the second floor of Posvar Hall, the Petersen Events Center's food court/study area, and the William Pitt Union's student lounge, café, front lawn, and patio. Any student with a laptop computer and the required wireless network card may use the service to access PittNet and the Internet from these convenient locations. CSSD's future plans are to offer the service to faculty and staff and to add new locations on campus.

The University's Web portal, my.pitt.edu, provides students, faculty, and staff with a single point of Web access to the information and applications that they use most at the University. The portal makes it possible to check e-mail, view grades and class schedules, pay tuition bills online, and read local news and weather from one convenient location. The portal interface can also be customized according to a user's preferences.

Extensive telecommunications support is provided to more than 26,000 telephones. Telephone service to the residence halls is also provided. Voice mail, cellular phones, calling cards, and audio conferencing are available as well.

Resource Environment

The Technology Help Desk is available 24 hours a day, seven days per week, by calling 412-624-HELP [4357] or by submitting a problem report online at technology.pitt.edu. The Technology Help Desk provides troubleshooting and problem resolution, and answers "how to" questions on a variety of information technology issues. Instructional documentation and an online Knowledgebase are also available at the technology.pitt.edu Web site.

Students have access to computing resources and services via six general-purpose computing labs and a productivity computing lab at the Pittsburgh campus. The labs offer students access to more than 600 computers running Windows, Macintosh, Linus, and Unix. Computers are equipped with more than 200 of the latest software applications and tools as well as CD writing capability and USB ports. Each lab features several media stations that offer CD duplications, scanning, and image processing capabilities. Printing services include high-speed print capability in all facilities and color laser print capability in the David Lawrence Hall computing lab. Lab hours and locations are available at technology.pitt.edu. In addition, more than 100 e-mail kiosks are distributed throughout the Pittsburgh campus, providing convenient locations for students to check their e-mail or to browse the Web between classes.

CSSD's spam and virus e-mail filtering service stops dangerous viruses and unwanted e-mail from reaching the @pitt.edu e-mail addresses of students, faculty, and staff. The service will soon be available for departmental e-mail addresses as well. Students, faculty and staff can also use the Pitt Software Update Service at updates.pitt.edu, to protect their Windows computers from viruses and security vulnerabilities. The Pitt Software Update Service downloads and installs the latest Microsoft security updates and service packs locally from the University's network.

The University's timesharing service consists of the UNIX, VMS, and MVS environments. Software applications include the database management systems, graphical analysis programs, mathematical and statistical programs, simulation packages, and tape/file transfer utilities that are supported by these systems.

CSSD has implemented a Central Directory that is the authoritative, centralized database of all individuals affiliated with the University. It includes information about students, faculty, and staff as well as various other classifications of individuals associated with the University. A unique feature of the Central Directory is the Finding People service which allows users to conduct a search for individuals at Pitt, using their last name or University Computer Account username.

Support Environment

Computing Services and Systems Development offers a consulting and evaluation service to University departments on a contract basis. Through the contract program, systems analysts and technical professionals can be hired, from one to five days per week, to provide dedicated, high-level, on-site consulting. CSSD has also established the Expert Partners program to provide departmental technical staff with access to CSSD resources and liaison and training services. This program is designed to assist the departmental staff analyst in delivering high-quality support within his or her own department, coordinated with the overall direction of services provided by CSSD.

Students are provided an extensive array of free software applications and utilities. The Microsoft Campus Software for Students program provides Microsoft applications and operating systems to Pitt students free of charge. Students can receive software upgrades while enrolled at the University and may retain the software when they graduate. CSSD also offers mathematics, statistics, utility, and Internet software products that are either provided without charge or at a greatly reduced cost.

In addition, CSSD provides the University with an Electronic Software Distribution service (software.pitt.edu) that permits students, faculty, and staff to install software that is available free of charge according to the University's enterprise and site license agreements.

Institutional Advancement

Institutional Advancement

The mission of the Office of Institutional Advancement is to "Inform and Involve to Inspire Investment." To achieve this mission, Institutional Advancement seeks to: 1) inform alumni and friends about the University through personal visits, coordinated events, targeted communications, and stewardship activities; 2) to involve alumni and friends in the life of the University; and 3) to inspire alumni and friends to help shape the University's future through their investment of philanthropic gifts.

The University of Pittsburgh's $1 billion Discover a World of Possibilities fund-raising campaign reached $602.5 million in gifts and pledges in 2003. A major focus of the campaign has been to increase the number of University endowed funds. At the end of fiscal year 2003, the University had 1,343 endowed funds, a 49% increase from the number of funds at the beginning of the campaign. Another focus has been to reach out to Pitt alumni and friends, not only in the local area, but also across the nation and throughout the world. At the end of the fiscal year, 54% of the gifts from individuals came from those outside of the Pittsburgh metropolitan area.

In fiscal year 2003, the University acquired in excess of $94 million in outright gifts from private sources, making this the most successful fund-raising year in the University's history. Of this total, alumni gave nearly $25 million (26 percent), corporations gave $14 million (15 percent), foundations gave $30 million (32 percent), while other individuals, groups, and sources gave $26 million (27 percent).

Institutional Advancement's staff members promote and mobilize volunteer activities in support of fund-raising, coordinate alumni advocacy efforts, and perform other functions to support the University's mission. One important fund-raising program is the Annual Fund, which provides potential donors with opportunities to support the University at every dollar level. From small donations which help fund day-to-day operations to large gifts which endow entire programs, the generous support of devoted Pitt alumni, friends, parents, faculty, and staff is critical to Pitt's mission. In fiscal year 2003, nearly 38,000 donors made gifts to the University's Annual Fund, making it the most successful year in its history.

Institutional Advancement's Planned Giving department assists friends and alumni in arranging charitable gifts that are executed over an extended period of time or at some point in the future. These contributions, which may provide powerful tax benefits and sources of income to donors, can be made through gifts of life insurance, life income gifts, or through a number of other donor-friendly options.

Members of the staff of Corporate and Foundation Relations act as liaisons between individuals at the University – faculty or various other departmental personnel – and representatives of local, national, and international corporations and foundations. The purpose of this effort is to connect University funding needs with the philanthropic interests of donor organizations. In addition, the University participates in a corporate matching gift program through which numerous corporations match eligible gifts made to the University by their employees.

The Office of Alumni Relations and the University of Pittsburgh Alumni Association together promote mutually productive relationships between the University and its alumni, who number more than 220,000 and who reside in all 50 states, the District of Columbia, three U.S. territories, and in 160 foreign countries. Alumni Relations seeks to foster the continued connection of alumni with Pitt after graduation, because alumni are the main link between the University's past and its future. The Alumni Association charters a growing number of Pitt Alumni clubs, works to influence government offices to fund and nurture higher education, and assists the University in its efforts to attract and support high-caliber students. Additionally, Alumni Relations directs the Blue and Gold Society, an organization of outstanding student leaders who represent the University at alumni and community events.

Activities held in the Heinz Memorial Chapel are administered through Institutional Advancement. This Gothic chapel is famous for its magnificent stained glass windows. A focal point of campus life for students, faculty, staff, and alumni, the Chapel provides a place for worship services, concerts, lectures, memorial services, weddings, and individual reflection and meditation.
